Customer Reviews

I'm not sure it is possible for someone not from South Louisiana to understand how food, music and celebrations combine to form the fabric of life in New Orleans. For a native, New Orleans Classic Celebrations is a treasure collection of famous restaurants, classic dishes, chefs and local celebrities. For the non-native, it is their best chance to understand what makes New Orleans so special. Kit Wohl has put together a fabulous collection of recipes, exceptionally beautiful pictures and special tidbits of the charm of New Orleans. This is a beautiful coffee table book "and it is simply too stunning to think of taking it into the kitchen. But for anyone wishing to replicate a dish they enjoyed in one of the famous restaurants of New Orleans, this is a must have in the kitchen. The foreword was written by Chris Rose. If you are a native, you will certainly remember his insightful and poignant writing about life after Katrina. Although the foreword is only one page, you once again get to experience his unique style. He captures the essence of what is to follow. There are some fifty recipes from 27 of New Orleans's most famous restaurants and one from Boise Bollinger owner of Bollinger Shipyards. You really gain some insight about the passion of food when a recipe from a shipyard gets featured among some of the most famous restaurants in New Orleans. The recipes are well presented and explained. But what will really gain your attention is the accompanying photographs. Some of the most stunning food photographs I have even seen. In addition to the photographs of food are some wonderful scenes from New Orleans and the surrounding area. On the final page is a stunning picture of St. Louis Cathedral taken from the Mississippi River.
