Customer Reviews

When my daughter was called out of town just before the new litter of puppies were to be born, I flew into a panic because she had taken complete charge of our previous litter of maltipoos. She was the one who had done extensive research online and had read the pertinent sections in the veterinary handbooks in our home library. I had played the role of ignorant bystander, admiring and cuddling each new puppy as it was delivered - never dreaming I might some day be called upon to handle the whole procedure on my own. NOW, faced with just that eventuality, I started randomly doing research on the internet and in our various handbooks. I was so panicky, and there was so much information out there that I became more confused than ever. I was even finding contradictory advice in my searches and didn't know how to determine whose advice would be best to follow. When it became obvious that birth was imminent (in the next few hours), I began searching for a downloadable book that would be short and authoritative enough to give me the most pertinent, informed advice in the clear, accessible manner I required. Myra Savant-harris provided that and in the very nick of time. A former obstetrics nurse, she has the necessary knowledge and an accessible style that can inform and embolden even a nervous ninny like me. She took me step by step to an understanding that was absolutely invaluable. Since I had no way of knowing just how much time I had left before going into action, I had to read the book backwards. But that worked just fine since the book is so well organized. It was as if someone stepped in and took my hand, guiding me calmly through what had seemed like such an intimidating and confusing process.
